DOGS ONLY - Treatment for tapeworms is required when travelling with dogs (but not with cats or ferrets) from Great Britain (England, Scotland and Wales) to EU listed tapeworm-free countries including Northern Ireland, the Republic of Ireland, Finland, Malta and Norway. Dogs travelling to these countries must be treated for tapeworms by a veterinary surgeon not more than 120 hours (five days) and not less than 24 hours before the time of entry into one of these countries, and the treatment must be certified on the relevant section of the AHC.

I am entering the EU via Northern Ireland, the Republic of Ireland, Finland, Malta or Norway so my dog will need a tapeworm treatment before departure

DOGS ONLY - Before returning to Great Britain dogs (but not cats or ferrets) must be treated for tapeworms not less than 24 hours and not more than 120 hours (five days) before time of entry, unless they are entering GB from Northern Ireland, the Republic of Ireland, Finland, Malta or Norway. If you are staying in the EU more than five days then a vet in the EU must administer this treatment and certify the relevant section of the AHC. If you are on a short trip and returning to Great Britain within five days of departure then you should have your return treatment performed by a veterinary surgeon before leaving Great Britain.

I declare that the information entered above is accurate and correct and can be used by an Official Veterinarian to complete an Animal Health Certificate (AHC). I understand that I will be asked to sign an official EU declaration (the exact format of which will depend upon the country of entry to the EU) confirming that the reason for travel is not to sell or transfer ownership of the animal, and that the animal will travel within five days of the owner.
